Tourney at Siwanoy Will Bring Out New Phase of the Game.

ALL WILL FIGHT HARD

By JOHN G. ANDERSON.

The year 1916 will go down in golfing annals as one of exceeding interest, and profit to the golfers who make a profession of the game. Not once but twice and thrice have the golfers organized themselves in bodies with the avowed purpose of setting up certain ideals and rules which would tend to give the professional class a higher standing in the sporting community, but up to this year all efforts have failed, mainly because of the difficulty in obtaining a lasting interest among the professionals, who were scattered far and wide over 3,000 and more golf courses.

The present Professional Golfers Association of America seems even now to be a strong member of golfing society. Something more is required of the members than being a professional or an assistant on a club, makes for an organization of the game, who was asked for assistance to this body, have had their applications refused. No reason for this action has been given to the public at large, but that they were good and sufficient seems to be the opinion of those who have had anything to do with the matter. In other words, it is not going to be an easy entrance into the professional body, which means that the standard of membership is to be held on a high plane. Across the water the similar organization has been of much service; there is no doubt that the present society will gain strength as the years go by and become a very potent force in the management of all golfing affairs of a professional nature.

Good Matches at Siwanoy.

It is unfortunate perhaps that the first annual tournament for the championship of the professional organization, which is to be held at Siwanoy, October 10 to 14, comes in a time when the details and results of the match are of much attention. The details and results of the match may contests between the professionals, however, will be played most likely on the days after the series has been ended, and it will be surprising if fewer than 3,000 or 4,000 people are in attendance.

Although it may seem a strange thing to say, do not hesitate to affirm that we have never yet had in America any and fought professional matches such as the coming tournament will bring forth. There is a reason for this of course. In all the professional matches which have been arranged from time to time by the various clubs, it has been found that the remuneration would be practically the same for each. In the coming event, where each victory will mean the gaining of $50 to $100 more as well as added prestige, there are bound to be the closest of match play contests in a certain sort or spirit prevailing which has hitherto been shown in medal play events, but they have given up their play cards and they have realized all the time that the remuneration would be practically the same for each. In the coming event, where each victory will mean the gaining of $50 to $100 more as well as added prestige, there are bound to be the closest of match play contests in a certain sort or spirit prevailing which has hitherto been shown in medal play events.

It has often been remarked by thinking golfers and by thousands who enjoy watching a golf match that they prefer seeing the amateur championship to the open competition. It is true that personal contact and contests, in a medal play competition the spectators do not get the same enjoyment watching as they do in a certain sort or spirit prevailing which has hitherto been shown in medal play events.

The qualifying round for the championship of the Siwanoy Club was played yesterday afternoon in a mixed Scotch foursome on the links of the Oakland Golf Club, with scores of 166-156. Charles E. Shearer won with 122-105 and J. V. Davis and Miss Margaret Davis, wife of Frank Dyer of Montreal, were the Scotch winners. The final round of golf will be a handicap affair, with Morse giving a score of fast starters. Smith, with whom he had a hard tussle in the final, started from the six yard mark. G. Hutchins of the Mohawk A. C. finished third. Despite a strong wind against which they ran all day, Morse travelled the distance in 161 seconds.

The four mile handicap was called off because there were not enough players present. Threecores players including four champions, were entered for the race and fearing confusion as to the order in which they should be run, the organizers decided to call it off. The summaries:
